GET SEASICK IN A HOUSE.

Peculiar Effect of Attempts to Walk in Storm-Beaten Buildings—Floors Were Solid, Too.

At a recent meeting of the Women's Literary club of Baltimore Mrs. Charles C. Morgan read a paper in which she cited a peculiar but well-authenticated fact concerning some storm-beaten houses on Cobb's Island, off the eastern coast of Virginia. The houses were eventually washed away by the encroachments of the sea, but for a long time they were firm and solid in the sand at such an angle that the wanderer could walk in the second story windows at an acute degree of property in the sand.

There was not the slightest danger attendant upon walking up or down these floors, yet no one was ever found who could traverse their length without becoming seasick. Experienced sailors, who knew no qualms in midocean, turned faint and giddy on trying to walk these perfectly steady planks. To all the neighborhood the buildings were known as the "seasick houses," and that the seasickness was not due to imagination was proved by persons who never had heard of the tradition experiencing the same unpleasant results.

Mrs. Morgan, who resided on the mainland near by, concluded her account of the houses by saying that a small dog belonging to her husband, which followed that gentleman "foot to foot," as the negroes term it, never could be induced to follow his master across the mysterious planks. The command ever so peremptory or the inducement ever so strong.

MRS. PYMACH'S PIE.

Here's an idyl of the New York Stock Exchange—Speculators Appreciated Toothsome Delicacy.

Pymacher was a telegrapher employed by the stock exchange firm in which John W. Gates is a special partner, says Everybody's Magazine. Pymacher brought for his lunch a noble pie, a composition of Mrs. Pymacher's. The manager of the office tasted that pie, found it good, and gobbled it. Such are the notions of the boys to stay on the island. "Is there any more where that came from?" asked the manager, a man of delicate tooth. "There is more," said Pymacher, "and better, if possible." "It is not possible," said the manager. He told all the Chicago capitalists, who came to that office. He made their mouths water. The next day Pymacher brought in a pie, an iridescent dream, a tender flower. Half a dozen millionaires ate of it, with tears of joy and thanksgiving. "What shall we do for Mrs. Pymacher? Shall we build her a monument?" "They her a hundred shares of Northern Pacific," says Gates. So they bought her 100 shares at 113 1/4, sold it at 135. The next day came the corner, and a share of Northern Pacific was worth $1,000. But Mr. Gates had showed his eagerness to reward a supreme artist. If old Rembrandt were alive "the Gates crowd" would "let him in" on the best thing it had.

KEEP BOYS ON THE FARM.

Education Department Gives Good Advice to Rural Father—Advice to the Teachers.

The superintendent of public instruction of the state of Indiana has recently issued a bulletin touching on the steady migration of the young men of the rural districts to the cities in search of a so-called "better chance." Believing that Indiana is being sapped of its energies by that movement, the department in a bulletin to the teachers says that they can influence the boy to stay on the farm and to work out his problems.

"It will be a sad day for our national life when all our young farmers come to town; when the small, well-cultivated homesteads give way to landed estates," the bulletin says.

The necessity of keeping the boys on the farm was the subject of a discussion as to what the teacher can do for the community. A teacher's power in determining the industry of a community lies in making her schoolroom a busy workshop, where the rights of others and the nobility of honest toil are taught.

The bulletin which is being sent out by the state superintendent deals with the relation of the teacher to the school, her patrons and the locality. The teacher, the bulletin says, ought to be a missionary, harmonizing turbulent elements.

Booming Books.
Some time ago a rumor went round that a large number of the most respected diners-out. Your neighbor at table would lead the conversation to the latest novel—quite the easiest of conversational openings for strangers, who lay their heads together over the menu and have to entertain each other for an hour. You are interested in the description of the book of the hour, you are a little ashamed of not having read it, and going home you sit down and order the book—from the circulating library. Every publisher, every theater manager, every dealer of a patent medicine knows that the advice of a friend is a more concentrated and personal pull than the opinion of a critic from the empyrean. And if the idea was ever carried out, it deserved to succeed, but no one ever spotted the paid diner-out. There was the artistry of the thing.—London Chronicle.

All Souls Are Good.
A recent bulletin of the department of agriculture says: "It appears that practically all soils contain sufficient plant food for good crop yield; that this supply will be indefinitely maintained, and that this actual yield plants adapted to the soil depends mainly, under favorable conditions, upon the cultural methods and suitable crop rotation."

Do You Want Strength?
If you want to increase your strength you must add to and not take from the physical. In other words, you must eat and not be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues before being expelled from the system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of ingredients that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength giving qualities. Sold by E. C. Wines.

I Saved His Leg.

COLONIZING CANADA.

What Persistent Advertising Has Done for the Northwest—Growing Flax on a Large Scale.

Some five years ago the Canadian government did strenuous advertising throughout the cities of the United States with a view of disabusing the people's minds of the idea that western Canada was a waste of frost and snow. The government caused free lectures to be given, established bureaus from which large quantities of literature about Canadian possibilities in the way of farming and home making were issued and gave exhibitions of agricultural products at state and county fairs.

The farmers of the middle west in particular emigrated in large numbers, with the result that an American invasion of Canada began, and continued so steadily as to produce what a recent writer has called the "Americanization of Canada."

One of the most noticeable results of the invasion is shown in the introduction of the flax growing on a large scale. The flax has been introduced in an attempt to cultivate that grain, as they believed it hard on the land and a great protector of weeds. But the Americans have proved the contrary, and with land selling at $12 an acre and yielding an average of 15 bushels to the acre of flax the newly-bought farms have been saved for themselves during the very first year.

THE HARDINESS OF TREES.

Depends a Good Deal Upon the Climate to Which They Have Become Accustomed.

An expert nurseryman says the hardness or non-hardness of trees depends largely upon where the seeds from which the trees in question sprang came from. Satisfactory results are added, experienced by planting a seed obtained from the sunny south, say, by planting seeds gradually further north, however, trees may be at length hardened and acclimated until a seed from such a tree may be reasonably expected to thrive and mature its fruits.

Trees, like people, says the Philadelphia Record, acquire their habits from the climate in which they live. The northern tree knows instinctively when the time has come to ripen its fruits. The southern tree follows the same instinct, being in no hurry, as there is little likelihood of real cold. With transplants further north its habits change.

The great trouble with most people is that they want to jump a tree from south to north at one move. This same idea is evident in the attempt to transplant various fruit trees from Russia to the northern United States.

Apples and plums from the land of the great white bear have been kindly to the below zero conditions of the Dakotas.

NATIVES OF SWITZERLAND.

Cannot Forbear Allegiance Merely by Becoming Naturalized Elsewhere—Should Have Passports.

Students and other residents of the United States who may be natives of Switzerland, will be interested in a communication to the state department from Consul Lieberknecht at Zurich, who calls attention of students and others to the necessity of providing themselves with passports.

Many naturalized American citizens who were formerly Swiss citizens labor under a misapprehension as to their old and new citizenship rights and responsibilities. They return to Switzerland without naturalization papers or passports, only to find themselves Swiss citizens again.

The consul adds that a person never loses citizenship, no matter how long he may absent himself, unless he goes through certain necessary formalities. If he returns and is given a military tax, he is compelled to pay the same, in spite of the fact that he is an American citizen.

The only way to be released from old responsibilities is by making a written request to his home community for such release, submitting proof at the same time that he has acquired American citizenship.

HE WEDDED IN LONDON.

President Roosevelt's marriage register is in London, at St. George's, Hanover square, where so many American tourists have flocked to see it that, for convenience' sake, it has been placed by itself in an accessible alcove of the old church building, says the New York Tribune.

President Roosevelt's marriage to Miss Carow took place so long ago—17 years ago, to be exact—that few persons remember that the American president was married in a foreign land. He is, it is said, the only American president whose wedding was not celebrated under the Stars and Stripes.

Tourists take great interest in the certificate, in Mr. Roosevelt's occupation of "ranchman," and in Miss Carow's signature. They study the autographs of the witnesses, and they wonder who these persons were. They observe with pride that the canon of York, and not a simple "reverend," performed the ceremony.

Smallpox as "the Good Wife."
To this day smallpox is alluded to in the outer islands of the Hebrides as "the good wife" ("the good wife"), a form of euphemism, the idea of which is that, in order to escape the ban of the disease, it should be spoken of respectfully.—Caledonian Medical Journal.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn." is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the wrapper of every bottle of Scott's Emulsion is Scott's Emulsion.
